Privacy, Policy and Digital Communication
Comm 370: MWF 12:00 – 12:50: Prof. Phelan

- What exactly is privacy and do we need it?
- Is our use of digital media changing the way we experience privacy?
- What would the consequences be if the concept of privacy disappeared?

The Privacy Seminar focuses on privacy and digital media in ways that encourage an ongoing semester-long dialogue via text, Skype, and site visits, between high school students in New York City and Hamilton students.

Working together, younger and older students will identify assumptions and conventions related to privacy and clarify the key concerns raised by the use of digital media. One goal is to craft a privacy tool kit for adolescents. The user-friendly digital tool kit will offer choices one might make to protect privacy, in addition to offering reasons why privacy might matter in the twenty-first century.
