ACC-CLASS CHINESE LANGUAGE TEACHERS INSTITUTE FOR NONNATIVE SPEAKERS

This is a two-week Chinese language program which offers development workshops for pre-service and in-service K-16 nonnative Chinese language teachers. The program takes place on Hamilton College’s campus during the summer. The program’s overarching goal is to provide professional development opportunities in language and pedagogy.

By the end of the program, participants will improve their Chinese language proficiency, design and deliver standards-based thematic units. They will develop skills needed to properly align curriculum, instruction and assessment; and integrate culture, content, and technology into their teaching practices. Additionally, participants will gain the skills needed to carry out instruction in the target language; use task-based teaching templates to create meaningful lessons and activities for students; and assess students’ performance ability in an integrative way.

▪ Improve Chinese language proficiency, design and deliver standards-based thematic units
▪ Develop better teaching, assessment, and lesson planning skills
▪ Integrate culture, content, creativity, and technology into teaching practices

ACC Sponsored Programs

Established in 1996, ACC is a consortium of six leading institutions of higher education, dedicated to the highest quality of Chinese language learning in China. In ACC’s 16 years of success, ACC has grown substantially, and now offers three distinct programs in China:

▪ ACC Intensive Chinese Language and Culture Program in Beijing
▪ ACC-CLASS K-12 Summer Chinese Language Teachers Institute
▪ ACC Summer Field Studies
