THE HAMILTON DIGITAL COMMONS is an open archive for scholarly and creative works by faculty, students and staff. For more information about adding your work to the Digital Commons, contact Reid Larson (rsllarson@hamilton.edu) or visit www.hamilton.edu/digitalcommons.

INCREASE VISIBILITY

Why add your work to the Hamilton Digital Commons? Scholarship shared in open access repositories receives more citations and reaches an international audience who may otherwise be unable to access your work.

CREATE A PROFILE

Create and manage your own profile page bringing together biographical information, publications, learning objects, and other materials you would like to share.

Find examples at digitalcommons.hamilton.edu/sw_gallery.html.

FEATURE STUDENT WORK

You can use the Hamilton Digital Commons to showcase your students' work.

- Theses and senior capstone projects
- Grant-funded research
- Course projects

SHARE SCHOLARSHIP

The Hamilton Digital Commons provides multiple ways to connect readers with your work.

- Bibliographic entries. Add entries for your articles, chapters, books, and other scholarly or creative works.
- Article downloads. Make the full text of works for which you have retained copyright freely available. A majority of scholarly journals allow authors to post a version of their peer-reviewed manuscripts in an institutional repository.
- Content links. Link to full text articles hosted by disciplinary repositories (e.g., arXiv, SSRN), database aggregators (e.g., JSTOR), and publisher sites.

GET HELP

Your department's liaison librarian can help.

- Send a CV identifying the works you want to include.
- Provide PDFs of work you want to make available for download.
- Meet with a librarian to review your profile page and learn how you can manage your online presence.
