

LOSS OF ELIGIBILITY TO STUDY ABROAD

Eligibility to study abroad is automatically revoked if a student fails to remain in good standing at Hamilton College or falls below the threshold of established eligibility criteria. Student eligibility to study abroad is assessed at the time the student applies for study abroad advising. Students may lose eligibility at any time prior to study abroad in the following ways:

- Failing to maintain the required qualifying Study Abroad GPA of 2.7
- A grade of F in one or more courses in the semester prior to study abroad
- Accruing 6 or more disciplinary points prior to study abroad
- Failing to complete Course Requirements for PE, QSR, WI prior to study abroad: Two or more incomplete requirements will disqualify a student from study abroad. A student is allowed to study abroad with one remaining requirement upon submission of the form Acknowledgement of One (1) Incomplete Requirement. The student must indicate on the form, the plan for completion of that requirement upon return from study abroad.
- Failure to be a “student in good standing” at the College, this may include:

Suspension from Hamilton for non-Academic Reasons
Suspension from Hamilton for Academic Integrity Violation
Status of Academic Probation
Status of Suspension for Academic Deficiency

Students on academic suspension may be able to enroll independently in a foreign university for the duration of the suspension and transfer credits to Hamilton. A student with a suspension from the college for academic deficiency can only transfer up to two Hamilton units of credit while they are on suspension. A student with an Honor Court suspension will not normally be allowed to transfer credits completed at other institutions while on suspension.

- Active Medical Leave from the College: A student on an active medical leave of absence is not eligible to study abroad through the College. In order to be eligible to study abroad a student must follow the return from medical leave process and be cleared to return by the Dean of Students Office. For additional information regarding Medical Leave contact the Student Support Care Team (315-859-4600) or studentsupport@hamilton.edu
- Petitions and Appeals: Students may petition CAS through Off Campus Study for missing eligibility requirements (GPA, foreign language prerequisites, programs not on the published approved list, and grades). Students who wish to appeal disciplinary points may request an appeal in Off Campus Study and will be referred to the appropriate staff in the Office of the Dean of Students.
